Notes:

^aThe actual treaty should be consulted to determine if specific conditions, exemptions or tax-sparing provisions apply for each type of payment. The rates indicated in the table apply to payments from Canada to the treaty country; in some cases, a treaty may provide for a different rate of withholding tax on payments from the other country to Canada.

^bAs of April 30, 2017, Canada is negotiating or renegotiating tax treaties or protocols with the following countries: Australia, China (PRC), Malaysia, Netherlands, San Marino.

^cCanada imposes no domestic withholding tax on certain arm's length interest payments, however non-arm's length payments are subject to a 25% withholding tax.

^dDividends subject to Canadian withholding tax include taxable dividends (other than capital gains dividends paid by certain entities) and capital dividends. The withholding tax rate on dividends under the terms of Canada's tax treaties generally varies depending on the percentage ownership of the total issued capital or voting rights in respect of shares owned by the recipient.

^eRoyalties generally are defined to include:

- Payments received as consideration for the use of or the right to use any property, invention, patent, trademark, design or model, plan, secret formula or process.
- Payments received as consideration for the use of or the right to use industrial, commercial or scientific equipment or for information concerning industrial, commercial or scientific experience.
- Payments in respect of motion picture films, and works on film or videotape for use in connection with television.
- In some cases, technical assistance in respect of these items is also included.

Canada generally exempts from withholding tax cultural royalties or similar payments for copyrights in respect of the production or reproduction of any literary, dramatic, musical or artistic work, other than motion-picture films and videotapes or other means of reproduction for use in connection with television. However, several treaties exempt all cultural royalties from tax. Canada announced in its treaty negotiations that it is prepared to eliminate the withholding tax on arm's-length payments in respect of rights to use patented information or information concerning scientific experience. It also stated that it is prepared to negotiate, on a bilateral basis, exemptions from withholding taxes for payments for the use of computer software. As such, many treaties generally contain an exemption for such payments.

^fIn general, the terms "pension", "periodic pension payment" and "annuity" are defined in the applicable treaty. However, if they are defined in the treaty by reference to the laws of Canada, or are not specifically defined therein, the definition in the Income Tax Conventions Interpretation Act must be used. Section 217 allows non-residents who earn certain types of pension and other retirement benefits to elect to file a Canadian tax return and pay Part I tax thereon, rather than being subject to Canada's 25% withholding tax on the income. The withholding tax rate varies depending on, among other attributes, whether the payment is a lump-sum or periodic payment, or if the payment is a pension or annuity. Some treaties provide for an exemption for certain types of pensions or for an exemption up to a threshold amount. Some pensions are taxable only in the source country.

^gThe treaty currently in effect with these countries includes a Most Favoured Nation clause, which provides for reduced withholding rates if the other country signs a treaty with another OECD member country and that treaty includes a lower withholding rate. This clause allows the lower rate to apply to the Canadian treaty. The items of income to which the clause applies vary by treaty. The lower withholding rate in the other country's treaty will apply to Canada if that treaty is signed after the date that Canada's treaty with the particular country is signed.

^hA protocol or replacement treaty is signed but not yet ratified. If there are changes to withholding tax rates in the protocol or replacement treaty, the new rates are indicated in parentheses. Otherwise, the rates in the table continue to apply.

ⁱA new treaty is signed but not yet in effect. The rates in the new treaty are indicated in parentheses. Until ratification, the withholding tax rate is generally 25%.

^jThe following terms apply under the provisions of the Canada-U.K. treaty, including the protocol to amend the tax treaty which entered into force on December 18, 2014:Interest—Interest is defined as income from debt claims of every kind, whether or not secured by mortgage, and whether or not carrying a right to participate in the debtor's profits, including premiums and prizes attaching to bonds and debentures, as well as income assimilated to income from money lent by the tax law of Canada or the U.K. as the case may be. There are certain exemptions under the treaty. See also note (c).Dividends—The 5% withholding tax rate applies if the recipient of the dividend is a company that controls, directly or indirectly, at least 10% of the voting power of the payer. The protocol introduces an exemption from withholding tax for certain dividends received by organizations that operate exclusively to administer benefits under recognized pension plans. See also note (d).Royalties—Cultural royalties, excluding royalties in respect of films or motion pictures, and videotapes or other media for use in television broadcasting, are taxable only in the resident country. This treatment also applies to payments for the use of any patent or for information concerning industrial, commercial or scientific experience, as well as payments for the use of computer software. See also note (e).Pensions/Annuities—Pensions are defined to include any payment under a superannuation, pension or retirement plan, and certain other amounts including payments made under social security legislation. Periodic pension payments are taxable only in the resident country. Annuities are defined as periodic payments payable during a person's lifetime or for a specified period of time, under an obligation to make the payments in return for money or money's worth. The definition excludes payments under pension or income averaging annuity contracts. Annuities are subject to tax in the payer country at a rate of 10%. See also note (f).

^kThe Protocol to the Canada-U.S. treaty entered into force on December 15, 2008. It introduced a number of provisions that do not exist in Canada's other treaties:

- Art. IV:6: Treaty benefits apply to certain “fiscally transparent entities” (FTEs) such as limited liability companies, where the owner is resident in one of the countries, the income of the FTE is subject to tax in the owners' hands and the FTE is not resident in the other country.
- Art. IV:7: Treaty benefits are denied to certain FTEs that are treated as flow-through entities under the laws of one of the countries, and as regular taxable entities under the laws of the other country.
- The permanent establishment provisions in Art. V:9 cover certain Canadian or U.S. service providers who are present in the other country for more than 183 days in any 12-month period.
- The 5% treaty withholding tax rate on dividends in Art. X:2(a) applies to corporate members of FTEs that hold at least 10% of the voting shares in the company paying the dividends.
- The treaty includes a limitation-on-benefits (LOB) clause (Art. XXIX-A) that generally allows treaty benefits to be claimed only by certain “qualifying” persons, or entities carrying on connected active business activities in both countries.

The following items apply under the provisions of the Canada-U.S. treaty:Interest—Interest is defined as income from debt claims of every kind, whether or not secured by mortgage, and whether or not carrying a right to participate in the debtor's profits, including premiums and prizes attaching to bonds and debentures, as well as income assimilated to income from money lent by the tax law of Canada or the U.S., as the case may be. Contingent interest arising in the U.S. that does not qualify as portfolio interest will be subject to a withholding rate of 15%. As well, interest arising in Canada that is determined by reference to receipts, sales, income, profits or other cash flow of the debtor will also be subject to a 15% withholding rate. See also note (c).Dividends—The 5% withholding tax rate applies if the recipient of the dividends is a company that is the beneficial owner of at least 10% of the voting stock of the payer. The rate of Canadian branch tax is also limited to 5% on cumulative branch profits exceeding Cdn$500,000. The first Cdn$500,000 of cumulative branch profits are exempt from branch tax. See also note (d).Royalties—Royalties are generally defined as payments for the use of, or right to use, any cultural property and any copyright of scientific work; any patent, trademark, design or model, plan, secret formula or process; and information concerning industrial, commercial or scientific experience. The definition also includes gains from the alienation of any intangible property or rights in such property to the extent that such gains are contingent on the productivity, use or subsequent disposition of such property or rights. See also note (e). The following royalties are exempt from withholding tax:

- Cultural royalties, excluding royalties in respect of films or motion pictures, and videotapes or other media for use in television broadcasting.
- Payments for the use of, or right to use, computer software.
- Payments for the use of, or right to use, patents or information concerning industrial, commercial or scientific experience (excluding any such information in relation to a rental or franchise agreement).
- Payments in respect of broadcasting as may be agreed to between the countries.

Pensions/Annuities—Pensions are defined to include any payment under a superannuation, pension, or other retirement arrangement and certain other amounts, but exclude income averaging annuity contract payments. The definition of pensions also includes Roth IRAs and similar arrangements. Payments of Old Age Security and Canada/Québec Pension Plan benefits to U.S. residents are taxable only in the U.S. and are not subject to Canadian withholding tax. The U.S. does not withhold tax on social security benefits paid to Canadian residents, and only 85% of such benefits are taxable by Canada. Annuities are defined as periodic payments payable during a person's lifetime or for a specified period of time, under an obligation to make the payments in return for adequate and full consideration (other than services rendered). The definition excludes non-periodic payments or any annuity the cost of which was tax deductible in the country in which it was acquired. See also note (f).
